

In today's economy, customers expect personalized attention. Sales staff are often expected to manage dozens of sales leads at once, while meeting the demands of marketing staff and business strategy analysts to provide the scope of customer concerns, business metrics, sales numbers and product feedback.

How can an organization effectively manage all this useful data to meet each department's different interests? The answer is Customer Relationship Management – the future of customer-centric sales and marketing intelligence. That's where Qinfotech can help

We will ensure that you select the right combination of software, professional services and support to create a system designed for your exact needs. We focus on tailoring the software and empowering your organization to get the most out of your business potential whether it is a free Open source Solution or a State of Art CRM we will implement the right CRM based on your needs and your budget